13. Transportation cost

The public traffic of the city of Los Angeles is safe and good for residents as well as tourists or travelers. With 6 metro lines and over 200 metro bus lines, Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority has built a robust network that spreads through the entire city with inexpensive and affordable tariffs. The Metro rail and Metro bus fare usually charges with approximately $1.75. You can have the day pass at $7. For people who come under the category of senior citizens can have this pass at $1.80. An even better deal is a weekly pass, which only costs $25. Monthly passes are $100. To load your traveling passes, you need to purchase the TAP CARD that can be reused multiple times. There is a surcharge fees that you need to pay along with purchasing the day pass with the TAP CARD. You can use DASH by paying just 50 cents for the fare. The one way ticket while you are using any of the transportation systems of the city of Los Angeles is around $1.75. The regular monthly pass comes around $100 that can either take you to definite routes or make you travel anywhere across the entire city with the same transportation system. The normal tariff of a taxi starts with $3.50. You will be charged with $1.77 for a 1 km ride anywhere in the city through taxi. If you are making it wait, then the normal waiting hour charges for 1 hour is applied at $29.75.

14. Baggage allowance

When you are traveling in Los Angeles, the easy transportation does not restrict to carry any number of bags or luggage along with you. Unless it is not being a nuisance to other passengers and a problem to you, you can carry as many bags as you want. The metro buses do not charge for your luggage. However, the driver may not allow you to board the transit if there is no room for your luggage. Also, sometimes, you have to wait for hours together to reach to the station handling the luggage. It is all about how you are carrying your bags. The people around you will be a lot happier if you have only one bag with you. You will definitely find some chuckles at your way because of your bags. Instead, you can take a private taxi and pay a little extra than traveling through public transportation if you are alone handling 4-5 pieces of luggage and struggling to cope with the weight of each one of them. Just a small tip to the driver can make his day and you can have a peaceful journey.
