Index

3. Significance

In the Bible, the city of Aswan was known as Syene or Seveneh and was also, described as the southern limit of Egypt. Serving as the gateway to Sudan and Ethiopia, it was one of the major trade-centers and was the place where the annual Nile flood was sighted for the first time in Egypt. Stone for the temples and statuary of the Pharaohs was delivered from the syenite quarries nearby. Ancient Egyptian and Roman ruins are found on the Elephantine Island, in the Nile opposite Aswan, south of the city and Philae Island (submerged by the Aswan High Dam complex). The Aswan High Dam has contributed majorly to the GDP of Egypt by increasing the production of hydroelectric power and benefitting various irrigation projects in the city. The leader of the Muslim Ismailis, Aga Khan III is buried in Aswan.

4. History

Serving as a center for the ancient Egyptians and Ptolemies, and local quarries providing granite for construction of various Egyptian monuments; ancient Aswan is quite remarkable. The history of Aswan dates back to the epoch when it was known as Swenett, deriving its name from an Egyptian goddess. The early title of the city is also said to be derived from the Egyptian symbol for 'trade' or 'market'. Aswan operated as the doorway to Nubia, which is today mostly buried beneath Lake Nasser. Serving as a center for the ancient Egyptians, the main hubs for trading included the nearby Elephantine Island, which were heavily involved in the trading of gold, ivory and even camels being sent out Egypt-wide. Ruling the land from 323-30 BC, the Ptolemies used the city of Swenett as a base to explore Nubia and the central regions. Temple of Philae which is dedicated to goddess Isis, is the jump out reminder of their time in the history of Aswan. Sited on Agilkia Island, the temple was moved here by UNESCO after the construction of the Aswan Dam.

5. Cultural identity

Egypt stands as the land where many civilizations have met. The Pharaohs together with the Greeks, Babylonians and the Romans have left their imprints here. Islam was introduced to Egypt by Amr ibn al-A'as, who led Muslims from the Arabian Peninsula. Since prehistoric times, Aswan has witnessed entrance and exit of many civilizations. However, it has always preserved its original traditional heritage. People of Aswan are adherents of Nubian culture along with a mixed and diverse population. They are friendly, warm and hospitable. Their houses are painted with bright colors and have sand-made floors with roofless rooms. Visit Nubian Museum to have an insight into Aswan's rich culture.

19. Tourist benefits

On most goods and services in Egypt, 10% Value Added Tax is charged. At retail stores, the price is inclusive of VAT. If a tourist makes a purchase of $50.00 or more at a gift store that has an agreement with the VAT authorities of Egypt, then by filling a form at the store and getting it stamped, tourist is eligible for a 10% refund at the airport before departure. All he need to do is represent the form and goods at the airport. Don't pack these gift items in your luggage and keep it in your hand luggage. Also, a tourist is exempted from VAT tax on tourist services like hotel accommodation and meals, if he pays with foreign currency. As per the Egyptian law, one is not allowed to import more than 200 cigarettes (or 25 cigars or 200g of tobacco) and 2 liters of alcohol. Import and export of drugs, firearms and cotton is illegal. Export of locally purchased gold and silver for personal use or in small quantities is considered a legal act.

Download Uber to book a cab or a taxi. To notify your Facebook friends if something goes wrong, download Yalahwy and your friends will mobilize to come at your rescue.

21. Driving

Traffic rules and driving laws of Aswan might come across as a foreign language to the expats or travelers as the Egyptian traffic lights are equipped with an additional color Blue. Automobile drivers follow the exact color code for Red, Yellow and Green. But, color Blue on the traffic light is meant for the pedestrian crossing. Expect the unexpected while driving on the roads of Aswan as people there follow a very chaotic style of driving. One golden rule to be followed by all the automobile drivers in Egypt is that Eyes on road all the times!

22. Travel essentials

25. Change vendor's commission, ATM charges

Authorized banks remain the best source of exchanging currency. Nonetheless, one can change currency at hotels too. Also, for convenience, private exchange agencies are located at several areas downtown and in the suburbs. We recommend you to get some 'home' currency and get the Egyptian currency on arrival as you get a better exchange rate in Egypt and you won't have to pay commission also if you change your money in Egypt. In most hotels, restaurants, tourist-type shops and some supermarkets; credit cards are acceptable. ATMs are ubiquitous in Aswan and are accessible 24hrs/day. Recheck with your bank for information regarding the commission on withdrawal of money. Every time you swipe card in different bank's ATM, a fee up to $5 or more is charged. Working days for banks in Aswan are from Sunday to Thursday. On Friday and Saturday, banks remain closed. Typical banking hours for Government banks are from 08:30hrs to 14:00hrs and for private/international banks are from 08:30hrs to 17:00hrs.

Index29. Political Scenario

Egypt is a republic country with a semi-presidential system of government. With the resignation of President Hosni Mubarak in 2011, executive powers were assumed by the Supreme Council of the Armed Forces which later dissolved the parliament and adjourned the constitution. In Egypt, elections are held for the candidature of President and a unicameral legislature. The candidate with the maximum votes win the elections and is selected as a president to serve the nation for a four-year term.

30. Economic Scenario

Alike many other Egyptian cities, the economy of historical attraction, Aswan, is also heavily dependent on tourism. The government of Egypt vigorously promotes foreign tourism as it is a major source of currency and investment. Large number of people are also engaged in agriculture, particularly sugarcane. To cover up for shortfalls of income, many people cultivate food on their own. The High Aswan Dam has contributed around 4% to the GDP of Egypt by increasing transport productivity and stabilizing the overflow of Nile River. In addition, various irrigation projects are benefitted with the production of hydroelectric power.

Index31. Religious belief

Religious practices of people in Aswan involve a syncretism of Islam and traditional folk beliefs. Majority of people living in Aswan are Muslim. 10% of the population comprises of Christians and majority of the Christians are adherents of Coptic Orthodox Church, which was the dominant religion in Egypt before Islam.

32. Visa requirements

Every foreign traveler to Egypt requires an entry VISA to explore the Egyptian territories. Each one of them must hold a passport valid for at least six months post the date of entry. For all British, EU and EEA members, a full ten year passport is required along with at least six months validity beyond the return date. Most nationalities, including British, Americans, Irish, Canadians, New Zealanders, Australians and EU citizens can attain VISAS on arrival at officially designated international airports and sea ports, but not at land borders. VISAS issued on arrival are valid for a month but the process is much effortless and cheaper than getting a VISA through an embassy or consultant. Citizens of Republic of China, Japan, North Korea, South Korea, Maldives, Singapore, Nepal and Brunei can receive a VISA on arrival to Egypt whereas citizens of the remaining Asian countries require a possession of pre-arrival VISA to Egypt. Also, citizens of Iran, Iraq, Kazakhstan, Syria, Kosovo, Lebanon and Sri Lanka need a prior approval from the Egyptian State Security Authorities in addition to holding a VISA. It is advisable to keep 2 pages free in your passport for arrival and departure stamps. In certain cases, it has been observed that applying and receiving a visa can be a process of 20-30 days. Hence, it is essential that you check the timeline with the relevant authority in the country where you intend to make the visa application.

Index33. Essential vaccination

Every traveler should be up-to-date on routine vaccinations before every trip. These vaccinations include measles-mumps-rubella (MMR) vaccine, diphtheria-tetanus-pertussis vaccine, varicella (chickenpox) vaccine, polio vaccine and your yearly flu shot.

34. Theft and Safety

The crime rate in Egypt was always low until the revolution. Since the revolution, the crime rate has increased but it is still low as compared to the Western standards. Also, Aswan is relatively safer than other Egyptian cities. Be careful of quite conspicuous attempts at pickpocketing in the souk. Pickpockets are regular passengers in buses. So, travel with minimum cash and valuable items whilst exploring the city. Also, Egyptians know that many tourists consider it impolite if one doesn't return a smile or a greeting. They'll take undue advantage of etiquettes in order to earn some money from the travelers. Don't involve yourself with unnecessary conversations with the strangers. It's not safe for a solo woman traveler to travel alone whilst exploring the city especially if they are not comfortable with smirking men, although they are all bully. Many areas of the city have become unsafe for driving at night due to the rise in carjacking. Stay safe!

36. Accessibility

Aswan is not a very friendly place for the differently abled. A person needs to walk between the cemeteries and temples to explore the city regardless of wheelchair accessible tours. So, a person with decent fitness levels can only walk around with all convenience and comfort. Although there are tracks and ways created for wheelchairs, they have not been maintained properly since long. The cracked and the broken roads make it difficult to move a wheelchair on such roads. Government building don't have elevators and ramps are placed in wrong angles.
