4. History

"The History Of Zagreb Dates Back To 1094 AD When Hungarian King King Ladislaus Founded A Diocese Here. The Earliest Settlements Were On The Hills Kaptol And Gardec. After The Attack Of 1242 By The Tatars, King Bela IV Bestowed Gradec With A Golden Bull Which Gave The Settlement A Special Status And Freedom From Exemption From County Rule. There Were Frequent Disputes Between Kaptol And Gardec Although They Were Connected For Political And Economic Reasons. In 1621 Zagreb Became The Seat Of Ban Of Croatia Under Ban Nikola Frankopan. The Croatian Parliament Invited Jesuits To The City Where They Built The First Grammar School, The St Catherine's Church And Monastery And Founded An Academy Where Philosophy, Theology And Law Was Taught. This Was A Forerunner To The University Of Zagreb. In 1776 The Royal Council Was Moved To Zagreb And Zagreb Became The Headquarters Of The Varaždin And Karlovac General Command. In The 19th Century Zagreb Was At The Centre Of The Croatian National Revival And Saw The Construction Of Many Important Cultural And Historical Institutions. Railway Lines And Gasworks Were Brought To The City In The Latter Part Of The Century. The City Kept Flourishing From The Earthquake In 1880 To The World War I. It Was During This Period The City Got Its Layout That Is Present Even Today. During World War II, Zagreb Became The Capital Of The Independent State Of Croatia Which Was Backed Up By The Nazis, The City Was Liberated At The End Of The War. After The World War II, The City Started Expanding Resulting In Development Of Novi Zagreb And Incooperation Of Several Other Settlements. During The Croatian War Of Independence (1991 - 95), The City Was A Scene To Sporadic Fighting But Did Not Suffer Major Damages."

5. Cultural identity

"Zagreb has a wealth of cultural heritage shown through its many museums, art galleries, music and live performance venues. The museums in Zagreb not only map the art and culture of Zagreb or Croatia but also of Europe. It is estimated there are around 3.6 million exhibits housed in Zagreb's museums, galleries, churches and private collections. Croatia is also host to many international music events like the Inmusic festival, Zagreb festival, Žedno uho and others where several prominent international artists perform everywhere. This also helps bring in a lot of international tourists particularly during summers. The performing arts scene is also very active in Zagreb which has about 20 theatres or stages. A lot of music and film events make use of these theatrical venues. The most famous of which is the Croatian National Theater which was built in 1973."

6. Natural resources

"There is no shortage of natural attractions in Croatia. There are several parks, promenades, forests, lakes and a mountain where you can find many natural attractions. Some of the most popular natural attractions in or close to the city are: Maksimir Park founded in the late 18th century is one of the largest public parks in the country. Covering an area of 800 acres, the park includes part of the forest, lakes with swans and ducks, green meadows and walking and running paths. The park is also home to Zagreb's Zoo which is another popular attraction. Medvednica mountain/Sljeme Medvednica mountain standing at 1035 metres provides a getaway from the city both in terms of activity and weather. The mountain has lower temperatures than the city and also the snow cover lasts longer, making it an ideal point for skiing. The Medvedgrad castle lies on the mountain which offers great views of the city below. Jarun Jarun is a 2 km long artificial lake surrounded by cycling tracks, parks, forests and a promenade. You can enjoy long walks here or sunbathe in the summers. The lake is also popular for rowing competitions. There are also opportunities for windsurfing, swimming and boat riding at the lake. Brijuni National Park Brijuni National Park is located in Novi Zagreb and is very popular among tourists as well as locals. There are several parks here amidst beautiful trees and flowers. Many people enjoy barbecues at the lake. You can also go for a swim during the summer months here. It makes for a lovely experience."
