3. Significance

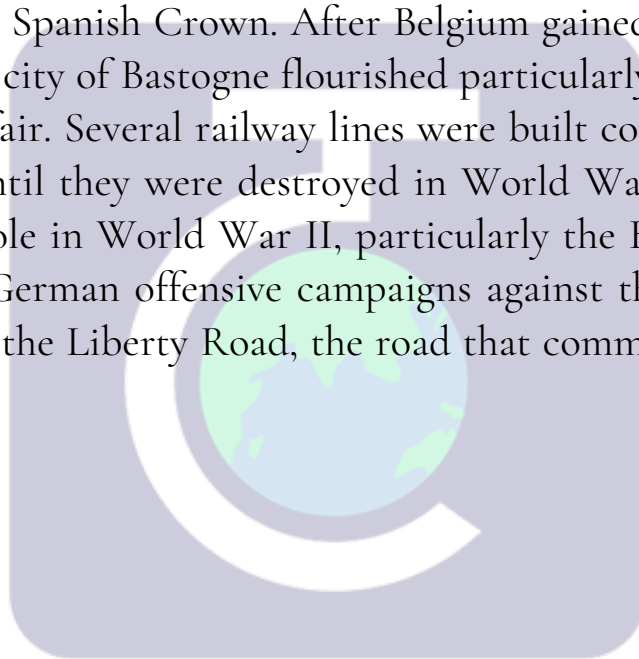

The Siege of Bastogne was an engagement in December 1944 between American and German forces at the Belgian town of Bastogne. The goal of the German offensive was the harbour at Antwerp. In order to reach it before the Allies could regroup and bring their superior air power to bear, German mechanized forces had to seize the roadways through eastern Belgium. Because all seven main roads in the densely wooded Ardennes highlands converged on the small Belgian town of Bastogne are only a few miles away from the border to neighbouring Luxembourg, control of its crossroads was vital to the German attack. The siege lasted from December 20–27, after which the besieged American forces were relieved by elements of General George Patton's Third Army.

4. History

During the Roman era, Bastogne was inhabited by the Trevari which were a tribe of the Gauls. In the 8th century the region was ceded to St Maximin Abbey near Trier. In the 14th century the city was granted its charter by John the Blind, son of Henry VII who encircled the city in defensive walls. In the 15th century the county of Luxemburg became a part of Duchy of Burgundy and Bastogne came under the rule of the Spanish Crown. After Belgium gained its independence in the 19th century, the city of Bastogne flourished particularly because of its forest products and cattle fair. Several railway lines were built connecting Bastogne to neighboring cities until they were destroyed in World War I. Bastogne is most well-known for its role in World War II, particularly the Battle of Bulge which was one of the last German offensive campaigns against the Allies. Bastogne is now the terminus of the Liberty Road, the road that commemorates the path of the Allied forces.

5. Cultural identity

Most Belgians view their culture as an integral part of European culture. Belgium is home to some of the most important European comic magazines and publishers. It has end number of impressive museum with Namur not being an exception. The Belgian architecture is very well renowned all over the world. Belgian literature is now divided between a Flemish literature and Belgian Francophone literature. Until the mid-20th century, Belgian writers more often wrote in French even if they were Flemish due to its dominant position. Music also received great recognition here. Good cooking and fine beers are seen as a part of Belgian culture. Although Belgian gastronomy is connected to French cuisine, some recipes were reputedly invented here.

6. Natural resources

Bastogne is surrounded by natural beauty, from lakes and rivers to the magnificent Ardennes forests. Lying on the crossing of rivers Rhine and Meuse, Bastogne is part of a lush, green valley that gives plenty of opportunities for hiking or just enjoying the sun on the banks of the rivers. There are many hiking paths through the Ardennes forests including the 'Battle of the Bulge' which goes through important locations of the war. There is also the beautiful lake 'La Strange' which is ideal for fishing and strolling around it.

36. Emergencies

Having a valid European Health Insurance Card (EHIC) will provide you access to Bastogne's public healthcare system at highly reduced cost. Since the EHIC won't cover medical repatriation, ongoing medical treatment or non-urgent treatment, it is advised that you have adequate travel insurance and accessible funds to cover the cost of any medical treatment and repatriation. Visitors who come from a country outside of the EU are advised to take out a valid, private medical insurance to cover medical expenses in Bastogne. The Vivalia - Hospital Ste Therese (50.012467, 5.722451) is a major hospital in the city. Emergency numbers: Police: 101 Ambulance / Fire brigade: 100

Conclusion – Why to select this destination

Bastogne is a sleepy little town that would have been unnoticed if it wasn't for the events that unfolded during the World War II. Bastogne is now synonymous with the Battle of Bulge where American forces heroically battled against Hitler's last attempt to regain control of the region. Today you will find many Museums, Monuments and Memorials dedicated to the war that attract tourists to this small town. But that is not all that the city offers, you can explore the wilderness of Ardennes and view wildlife of the region. You'll also come across beautiful rivers, lakes and springs.
