12. Key local guides and tours

You can find many guides and tours in Florence. The City which has a number of Churches and Museums, speaks about the History of Art and Renaissance in abundance. If you want a better understanding of this city and all the monuments and pieces of art, then it is suggested to hire a local guide who is very well versed in the Italian History or The period of Renaissance. It is also advised to read and make yourself aware before you visit such historical sites and places of interest for in depth knowledge. One tour and travel company that will give you a great experience is Artviva. The price starts from 100 euros and goes as high as 800-900 euros. The tour covers all the major attractions worth seeing in Florence. Another option is to engage a local from Florence to guide you. They are a little easy on the pocket. The service they provide is quite good and up to the mark. Customer satisfaction is their sole agenda.

13. Transportation hubs

Florence Airport (43.808653, 11.201214) is the main airport of the City. Serving thousands of passengers on a daily basis, all the important flights to and from Florence operate from here. The airport is well built with inter connectivity to major airports in Italy and outside as well. There are many services available inside the airport such as health and medical facilities, a good cafeteria and duty free shops. The airport premises contain many buses which operate from here to the main center of the City. There are special buses for tourists which only operate for sightseeing places. The other major source of transportation in Florence is the Firenze Santa Maria Novella railway station (43.776507, 11.247905). Millions of people use this railway line to reach their respective destinations. Said to be one of the busiest railway stations in Italy, with more than 15 platforms. The ATAF and LINEA bus systems are the local bus transportation in Italy which caters to all major parts in city. The buses are easily accessible and the tickets too is not that costly. Frequency of the buses is really good and the drivers are usually on time.

Index*14. Transportation cost

One can travel comfortably by foot in Florence but there is a very efficient network of public transport that can serve you. Tourists should avail the discounts given to them on public buses and trains for making their travel in and around the city much cheaper. Florence is well connected with almost all major buses and trains like ATAF and LINEA (which is the local bus service of the City, operating everywhere with frequent buses.). Tickets can be purchased from local booths and kiosks, which cost around 1-2 Euros for a 90 minutes' trip. The city has its own tram line called the T1 and the same tickets which you buy for your ATAF bus lines will work for it. The Tram is quite cheap and saves a lot of time if you want to travel fast and reach early.

15. Baggage allowance

You don't have to pay extra money for the luggage you wish to carry with you on public transport while travelling in Florence, but heavy luggage is to be avoided when travelling in peak hours as this causes inconvenience for other passengers.
