4. History

Although Agra's history is thought to be synonymous with the Mughal era, the location of Agra, had been established since the time of the Mahabharat period. Historians and popular research indicates that Agra's discovery was made by Sikandar Lodī, the Ruler of the Delhi Sultanate in 1504. Soon after his demise, the reins of the city were passed on to his succeeding son Sultan Ibrāhīm Lodī. After the onset of the Mughal era, Agra, then known as Akbarabād, was christened as the capital of Mughal emperors. Kings like Akbar, Jahāngīr and Shāh Jahān ran their reign from Agra. After the fall of the Mughal empire, the city of Agra was handled by the Marathas before eventually going into the hands of the British rule in 1803.

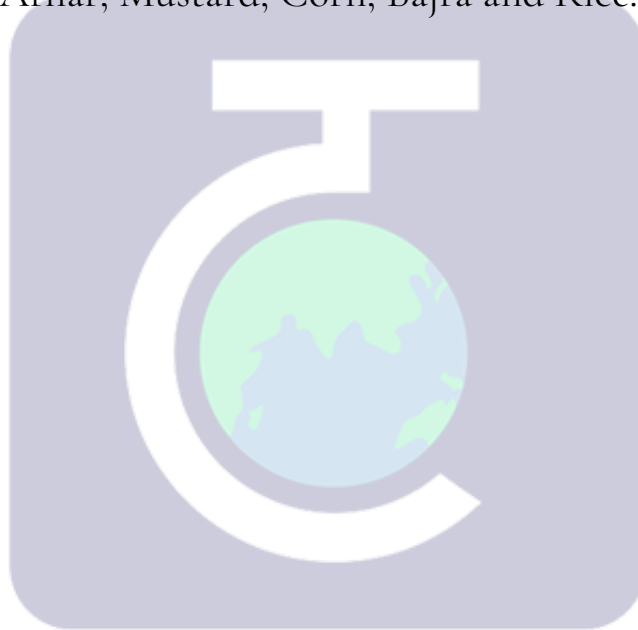

5. Cultural identity

Agra is by far the most important and famous tourist destination in the North of India. For a city that has watched the rise and fall of so many emperors, dynasties and reigns, Agra's cultural fabric is etched with the ethos of each of them in varying capacities. Agra holds tremendous historical value owing to the royal legacies attached with its identity. Also Agra has strong traditional values rooted in its culture, owing to its closeness to two of India's religious epicenters – Mathura and Vrindavan. The city's architecture has a strong mix of Indian and Islamic designs. Its population is a harmonious blend of people belonging to all kinds of faiths and beliefs.

Index6. Natural resources

Agra has a very dense forest cover as the city has the moist as well as hot climate and receives quite heavy rainfall. The city is well known for the Marble carving and cuttings and also that treasure the city with wealth. The city has the abundance of crops and the reason, it is situated near the Yamuna River and where the agriculture is highly in practice. The major crops are: wheat, Barley, Gram, Peas, Masoor, Arhar, Mustard, Corn, Bajra and Rice.

11. Key local guides and tours

Agra is a city of sights. There is no dearth of attractions in this historical city. Since the place is thronged by visitors all the time, government approved and private tour guides are plenty in the area. Taj Mahal, Agra Fort, Fatehpur Sikri tours are the obvious choices, followed by a tour to the nearby destinations. Agra discovery tours on battery powered rickshaws offer a closer peek into the city's culture, its people and their day-to-day lives, and the various monuments spread across the city. Another tempting tour is the Agra food tour. It combines the sights of Agra with the flavors of its kitchens.

Index12. Transportation hubs

Visitors come to Agra mainly from Mumbai and Delhi by road. The city is served by the Agra Airport which is a military airbase as well as public airport. Flights arrive from Mumbai and Delhi. The airport lies 12.5 km away from the city center. Airport taxi services are available at the airport to reach the city. The rates start from 450 rupees and can go up to 1100 rupees depending on the type of car. The main railway station is the Agra Cantonment Railway Station . The city also has main bus depots – Idgah Bus Stand , Foundary Nagar Depot , and Inter State Bus Terminal (ISBT) .

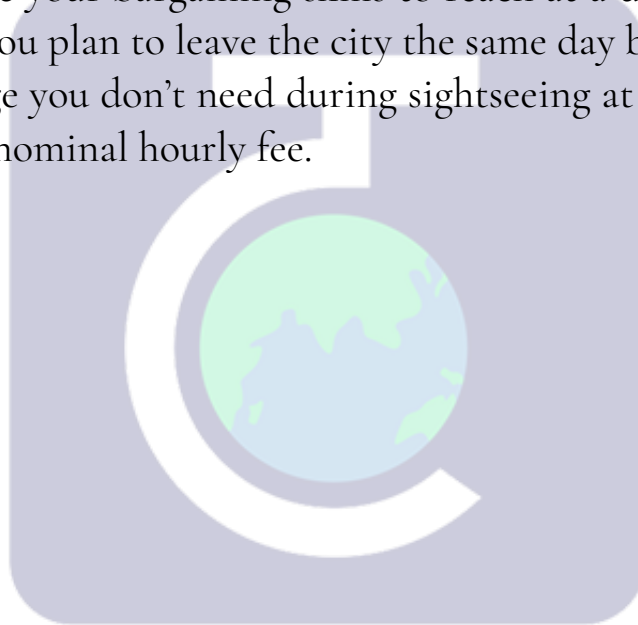

13. Transportation cost

It is fairly easy and convenient to get around visiting tourist spots in Agra city. If you wish to wheel around on your own, you can rent a bike or car at varying prices (make sure you possess a valid International Driver's License.) If you'd like to ply around the local mode of public transport, the city's Tongas, electric buses and electric tempos can be easily hired. You could also hop on a cycle-rickshaw. Piece of advice: to bargain in Agra is a must. You can negotiate the rates of public transport and if you're really good, the drivers will take you around the city for much lesser than what they had quoted originally. Getting around in Agra is easier and convenient if you hire taxis for a full day. The fare can be anywhere around 1200 rupees for an air conditioned taxi. Auto-rickshaws and cycle-rickshaws are available in plenty. Travelers should know the art of bargaining to get the best rates as the drivers are notorious for quoting hefty rates at the beginning. A one way ticket by a bus can cost around 10 rupees and a monthly pass shall charge 400 rupees. Try to get to at least 40% of the initial rates. Auto-rickshaw charges from the railway station to the Taj Mahal are usually 80 rupees, and cycle-rickshaws cost around 40 rupees to travel from the Taj Mahal to Agra Fort.

14. Baggage allowance

Taxi services usually do not charge extra for luggage. However, expect to pay some extra hundreds if you have heavy or more number of luggage pieces. The drivers also expect tips for carrying luggage. It is not possible to travel in auto-rickshaws and cycle-rickshaws with a lot of bags. When they see a foreigner with heavy luggage, the drivers immediately quote exorbitant rates as extra charges to carry the luggage. Use your bargaining skills to reach at a decent fare before you start the journey. If you plan to leave the city the same day by train, it is better to keep the extra luggage you don't need during sightseeing at the cloakroom of the railway station for a nominal hourly fee.

18. Tourist benefits

India is yet to come up with tax refund schemes for international tourists for the purchases during their stay in the country. But, there are many other discount offers and deals available for the visitors in each state. These offers are mostly available during tourist or festival seasons when every shop and company has some deal or other to attract customers. Large shopping centers or malls may not have regular discount sales, but the smaller shops and regional markets have special sale seasons with reduced prices. Another option is to bargain for lower rates. Sellers in big tourist cities like Agra tend to quote high prices to the foreigners, especially when there is no price tag attached to the product. A good bargaining will usually end up in prices coming down by at least 40% of the original price.

Conclusion – Why to select this destination

Why choose Agra ? The presence of Taj Mahal, the symbol of eternal love, is the primary reason why people visit Agra. You have to see it in person to realize its magnificence and architectural mastery. It is not just a tomb in white marble. The structure reflects the passion, dedication, hard work, and artistry of thousands of craftsmen who had worked day and night for years to erect the most wonderful ode to love. Agra Fort is another architectural marvel you cannot miss in Agra. Also a World Heritage Site, this fort provides an insight into how the royalty had lived and ruled in the Mughal Empire. Equally magnificent is Fatehpur Sikri that has many historical buildings from the Mughal era. The city also has several tombs of the prominent Mughal Emperors and Empresses. All these buildings have stood the test of time and show to the world how the masters of the past eras were inimitable champions in their craft. The city has many Mughal style gardens, mostly inside forts. Some old temples are also present, proclaiming the cultural diversity of the land even from the past. The food in Agra is a delectable mix of the cuisine of Uttar Pradesh and traditional Mughlai culinary art. For chaat lovers, Agra is the place to visit. The city is dotted with endless chaat stalls which are crowded all the time. Another popular snack is Dal Moth, a lentil mix drenched in spices. But, it is the Agra Petha that remains the signature food of the city. This sweet is so popular that tourists often buy them as souvenirs.
