13. Transportation cost

Public transportation in Gettysburg area is provided by Freedom Transit, a division of York Adams Transportation Authority. It operates the Blue, Lincoln, and the Gray Lines. All these lines connect to major destinations across the Gettysburg community. Gettysburg isn't a big town and using Trolley rides could be a better option. The fare for one ride is $ 1.25, $ 5 for ten rides, and $ 0.75 for senior citizens. Bus is another alternative with $3 as a day pass and approximately $27 as monthly pass. However, the best way of getting around Gettysburg is by your own car; also from airport to the city center in 1 – 2 hours. Bicycle rental places can be found just north of town near Eternal Light Peace Memorial.

Conclusion – Why to select this destination

If experiencing life on the battlefield is on your to-do list, then you may choose to enjoy a completely guided tour of the borough. National Military Park Museum Visitor Center is basically a museum about the American Civil War, and is home to various artifacts such as canons, firearms, and knives. Not only that, but it is also a tour center to see the Gettysburg Battlefield and Eisenhower National Historic Site. Are you an enthusiast of the American Civil War? Then look no further for a quick getaway than to the town of Gettysburg. It is a borough located in Pennsylvania with a population of around 7,600 people, and so it is not big enough to be considered a city. However, it is also the county seat for Adams County, which was named after the second president of the United States. As mentioned, this town boasts a rich history. The Battle of Gettysburg, which occurred in 1863, is considered one of the greatest battles in the time of the American Civil War. However, you would be surprised to know that only one stray bullet took the life of a civilian for the course of the entire battle. Not far from this town is the Adams County, which is known for its farms and wineries. Gettysburg is not a town stuck in the past – they also allow their visitors to live in the moment, of course. The area allows for recreation and rejuvenation. What is the best part? You can choose the activity you want to do. Whether it's hiking, motor biking, playing golf, or having a simple spa day, you can do it all here at Gettysburg.
