Index

3. Significance

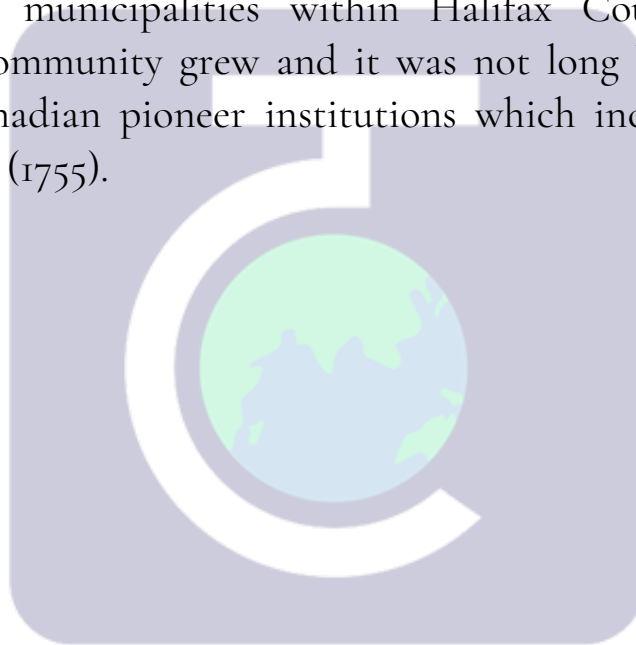

Being a harbour town, Halifax is a major economic centre which serves a population of at least 400,000 with 290,000 living in the urban centre. Because it is the capital of the province, many government offices are found in Halifax city. It is also one of the best tourist destinations in Canada. Some of the tourist attractions include York redoubt national historic site, Theodore harbour and maritime museum of the Atlantic Ocean. It is also a key attraction for people who love music, art and culture which dates back to the seventieth century.

Index

4. History

The French were the first European settlers to arrive in Halifax in the early sixteenth century, establishing a colony; the colony of Acadia. Later on the British arrived in mid seventieth century which sparked Father Le Loutre's War. Halifax used to serve as a base for the British operations against the French fort at Louisburg. Halifax was incorporated as a city in 1842 but later it was dissolved to form four regional municipalities within Halifax County. Despite many hardships, Halifax community grew and it was not long before it became the home to several Canadian pioneer institutions which include Halifax gazette (1752) and post office (1755).

5. Cultural identity

Halifax is considered to have the most urban population. It is one of the most important cultural centres in the Atlantic. It has a vivacious culture and arts community that is broadly supported by the general population and the many tourists who visit the area annually. From its founding times, music, art and theatre have been central attractions. The Neptune theatre (44.645966 -63.574054) the Nova Scotia collage of art and design (44.647573 -63.571088) and Symphony Nova Scotia continue these significance and traditional relevance. The Art Gallery of Nova Scotia's, Halifax hosts the gallery's permanent collections and also wide range of exhibitions. Although it is not diverse as other Canadian regions, it is slowly evolving into a place of more diverse cultures. Some of the minority communities include African Nova Scotia community which is the largest minority group; Muslims are the second largest minorities as well as the Greek and Lebanese communities which were established recently.

Index6. Natural resources

Halifax has five main natural resources namely: forestry, fisheries, agriculture minerals and energy. Forestry includes rare species of trees which forms part of tourist attraction. The large shore line makes fishing as part of its economic activities. Fishing industry is one largest employer not only in Halifax but in Canada. Agriculture includes dairy farming and horticulture. There are large deposits of coal in Halifax and also natural gas.
